Core Sound Waterfowl Museum and Heritage Center

The museum on Harker's Island was devastated during Hurricane Florence. And fears set in that all the strides made to restore the museum would be lost if Dorian landed on our shore two weeks ago. Luckily, we dodged that misfortune. Karen Willis Amspacher, Executive Director, talked passionately about the role of the museum as a depository of local history and as a cultural center and gathering spot for HI, Carteret County and visitors from all over.

The work to restore the building is hoped to be complete by the Decoy Festival the first weekend in December. Until then, the museum is operating out of donated quarters in downtown Morehead City. Drop by to see the carvers on the porch while they are still here in our locale.
